

The Enough Declaration

I am enough. When God created me, He thought through every part of who I'd be. HE MADE ME ON PURPOSE. AND HE DELIGHTS IN ME. I am enough. The world may say I don't measure up to their standard of perfection, but the truth is . . . I wasn't meant to anyway. Because I am enough. The Enemy may tell me I'm nothing special by reminding me of painful messages from the past. BUT I WON'T LISTEN ANYMORE. Because I am enough. I may bully myself, using my own words as weapons to make me feel worthless. BUT NOT ANYMORE. Because I am enough. My beauty isn't dependent on the size of my jeans. MY WORTH ISN'T MEASURED BY MY PERFORMANCE. My value isn't determined by my talents and abilities. I am enough—just as I am. There is nothing I can do or be to make my heavenly Father love me any more or less than He does right now. I'M NOT DEFECTIVE. I AM A DELIGHT. And to God, I am enough. I ALWAYS HAVE BEEN. So from now on, GOD'S OPINION OF ME IS THE ONLY ONE THAT MATTERS. —Because He is enough.—
